

CHANDRA PRESENTS: ASTRONOMY FACT #10

In billions of years, when our Milky Way galaxy collides with the Andromeda galaxy, it is unlikely that any stars will collide because they are all so far apart from each other.

No need for a helmet I guess.